Beamer is a LATEX class for creating presentations that are held using a projector, but it can also be used to create transparency slides. Preparing presentations with beamer is different from preparing them with wysiwyg programs like OpenOffice.org Impress, Apple Keynote, KOffice KPresenter or Microsoft PowerPoint. A beamer presentation is created like any other LATEX document: It has a preamble and a body, the body contains sections and subsections, the different slides (called frames in beamer) are put in environments, they are structured using itemize and enumerate environments, and so on. Shares details of the author's marriage and recounts her struggle to cope with the tragedy that cost her the life of her husband. Aging and recent widow Harriet Beamer insists she's getting along fine with her dog Humphrey in Philadelphia ... until she falls for the fourth time, injuring her ankle, and causing her son and daughter-in-law to cry foul. Insisting Harriet move in with them in California, they make a bet that her ankle is broken, and she foolishly promises to move if they're right. Four x-rays later, Harriet's ankle—and her heart—are broken. She packs up, ships her huge salt and pepper collection to California, and prepares to move away from the only life she knows. The only catch? She's doing it her way. Just wait till her daughter-in-law hears Harriet will travel cross country only by public transportation and alternate means. What follows is a hilarious, heartwarming journey by train, metro bus, ferry, and motorcycle. Along the way, Harriet discovers that although her family thinks it's time for her to be put out to pasture—God has a different plan.

CollaborateCom is an annual international forum for dissemination of original ideas and research results in collaborative computing networks, systems, and applications. A major goal and feature of CollaborateCom is to bring researchers from networking, systems, CSCW, collaborative learning, and collaborative education areas - gether. CollaborateCom 2008 held in Orlando, Florida, was the fourth conference of the series and it reflects the accelerated growth of collaborative computing, both as research and application areas. Concretely, recent advances in many computing fields have contributed to the growing interconnection of our world, including multi-core architectures, 3G/4G wireless networks, Web 2.0 technologies, computing clouds, and software as a service, just to mention a few. The potential for collaboration among various components has exceeded the current capabilities of traditional approaches to system integration and interoperability. As the world heads towards unlimited connectivity and global computing, collaboration becomes one of the fundamental challenges for areas as diverse as eCommerce, eGovernment, eScience, and the storage, management, and access of information through all the space and time dimensions. We view collaborative computing as the glue that brings the components together and also the lubricant that makes them work together. The conference and its community of researchers demonstrate the concrete progress we are making towards this vision. The conference would not have been successful without help from so many people. This special issue focuses on how International Relations communicates with the world. Come with Beamer and his best friend Kyle as they learn about Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) from Dr. Schreiber, who in real life is a Pediatric Neurologist, and from Olivia, who in real life has a TBI. Join them on their journey as they learn what a TBI is, and how to be good supportive friends for Olivia. “ A special thanks to Olivia Lang and family, the authors, and contributors for sharing Olivia’s personal and inspirational story as a patient living with Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI). The narrative, as told through the compassionate eyes of Beamer, Kyle, and pediatric neurologist Dr. Schreiber, helps us to not only define and understand TBI and the resultant changes that take place within the brain, but illustrates how living with this type of injury affects children’s daily lives, school participation, and relationships. This Tell Me Town book serves as a reminder for us all to take the time to “walk in another’s shoes” such that we may embrace the challenges faced by TBI patients with a sense of knowledge and caring.” Raquel Langdon, MD Pediatric Neurologist, Co-Director of Pediatric Headache Center for Neurosciences and Behavioral Health, Children’s National Health System and Pediatric Specialists of Virginia “ This book is an excellent story for anyone interested in learning more about the challenges facing children after experiencing a traumatic brain injury (TBI). Olivia’s story highlights the unique hurdles that kids with brain injuries may face in their school, home and community environments while simultaneously providing suggestions for ways that others can help. As a pediatric psychologist, I have seen first-hand the emotional, social, physical and cognitive changes associated with brain injuries. I am thrilled to now have this book as a resource for guiding children as they process their own experiences and prepare to talk with friends, peers, or teachers about the impact of their TBI. I especially love that the telling of this story is from the perspective of Beamer and his friend Kyle as it emphasizes the role of peers in helping others by showing compassion!”

Kendra Battaglia, PsyD Director of Psychology Pediatric Specialists of VA “ Beamer, Tell Me Town, and Cindy Chambers have created yet another fantastic book for children and families! By breaking down what a Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) is, discussing how people live with it, and how to be a good friend to someone with TBI, they demystify this very difficult condition. It explains TBI at a child’s level and what’s even more important is that it focuses on how people with TBI or any other condition can go to school, live life, and have friends, even if it looks, feels, or seems a little bit different. Having a disease or condition as a child can be extremely isolating. These stories show that children are not alone, and that we can embrace each other’s differences in a loving and supportive way.” Jamie Gentile, MPH, CCLS Director, Child Life Services Inova Children’s Hospital Come with Piper as she experiences her first overnight stay at the hospital. Join Piper as she meets Miss Jamie the Child Life Specialist, Dr. McNice, the nurses and the techs; all working together to make her stay as nice as it can be. Beamer the therapy dog narrates this delightful story. He introduces us to some of the very special people we can find at Children's hospitals everywhere, gently caring for those we love. "Being a patient in the hospital can be a very scary time. Thanks to Cindy Chambers for writing this book to help all children cope with being a patient in the hospital, and for highlighting the role of the child life specialist. Our child life specialist is a critical member of our team. We could not do what we do without their expertise." Lucas R. Collazo, M.D. Director of Pediatric Cardiac Surgery and Co-Director of the Pediatric Heart Program Medical Staff President, Inova Fairfax Medical Campus Inova Children's Hospital, Falls Church, Virginia "A hospital stay can be frightening and confusing to children with special health care needs and their families. Tell Me Town's Piper Stays Overnight At The Hospital gently follows young Piper as she meets a Child Life Specialist who helps navigate the hospital visit and manage medical procedures. Advance reading of Piper's story will alleviate the anxieties of a pediatric inpatient stay. This delightful adventure with Piper, Miss Jamie and Beamer offers children and families a great opportunity to predict and prepare for an important medical experience." Kelly Henderson, Ph.D. Mom and Executive Director, Formed Families Forward Instructional Faculty, College of Education and Human Development George Mason University, Fairfax Virginia "Piper Stays Overnight At The Hospital introduces two specific "helpers" found in many pediatric settings - child life specialists and therapy dogs! Having retired from Child Life, I appreciate the description that Child Life Specialist Miss Jamie provides about an IV start and some useful coping techniques. The narrator, therapy dog Beamer, is a delightful character who makes important observations about the hospital experience. By design, this book has a slightly different approach from others in Cindy Chambers' series because it does not describe a specific reason for a hospital admission, and thus allows a family to make a personalized adaptation of the story." Jerriann Myers Wilson, M.Ed., CCLS Retired child life specialist
